New Mexico Artist Appears in Museum

By DOVIE CHERRY

Gisella Loeffler of Taos, N. M., noted painter and versatile artist, will be at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

A tea at 4 p. m. Sunday will honor the Taos artist. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sears, Mr. and Mrs. Boone McClure, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mack will be special hosts and hostesses for the occasion.

All elementary grades have been invited to hear Gisella Loeffler Tuesday morning and to see her paintings and collection of toys, costumes, dolls ond other "loot" from Mexican and South American market places.

Tuesday evening, college art students and other interested people are invited to hear her talk about her paintings.

Gisella Loeffler's paintings have been on display at the museum for some time and will continue to be on display through May. The paintings, which range from canvas to painted trays, will be on sale. There will also be silk screen prints of her work on sale at the museum. Small prints are $1 and larger ones are $2.50.

Gisella was born in a little mountain town on the border of Austria and Hungary and lived there until she was fvie years old when she moved to the United States. Much of her highly decorative style was derived from the memories of her early childhood in the pine tree forests and the Austrian Christmas and Easter decorations and parties.

She has decorated many homes and public buildings. A revolution in hospital decoration was the ceiling she painted in the children's operating room in the Barnes Hospital at St. Louis. The walls and ceilings depicted gay and colorful scenes from nursery stories.

Gisella's designs in many techniques on canvas, ceramics, glass, murals and wood are in museums, art galleries and private collections throughout the country.

She has illustrated covers for national magazines such as the New York Herald-Tribune, the Children's Activities Magazine, the Children's Digest and has illustrated several books.

In private life, she is Mrs. Frank Chase, mother of two children and grandmother of four.

City Adopts Trailer Park Rule

Fred Crawford Dies Sunday

Fred L. Crawford, pioneer resident of the Panhandle, former member of the U. S. House of Representatives and a brother of L. H. Crawford of Canyon, died Saturday morning in Washington, D. C.

Funeral services were scheduled for 10 a. m. today in Washington. Burial will be there with members of the Michigan delegation in Congress serving as honorary pallbearers.

Mr. Crawford was county clerk of Hutchinson County in 1912 and 1913 when Plemmons was the only town in the county. He had settled in the Panhandle in the early 1900's near Plainview. Mr. Crawford was born May 5, 1888.

Elected to Congress from the 8th District of Michigan in 1935, Mr. Crawford served until 1953. He was a member of the committees for Public Lands, Insular Affairs, Banking and Indian Affairs.

In addition to his brother in Canyon, survivors include his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Crawford, Washington; a son, William Douglas Crawford, Washington; a sister, Mrs. D. B. Kirk, Hutchinson County; two other brothers, C. J. Crawford and Horace Crawford, both of Goldthwaite; and one grandson.

Regulations for Health Purposes

The City Commission adopted a trailer camp ordinance Monday night which will regulate the parking of house trailers in Canyon and one mile outside the city limits. The ordinance will not take effect until after it is approved for form by the city attorney, A. W. Lair.

The ordinance will require that each trailer parked in a camp must be in a rectangular area not less than 30 by 50 feet and each camp must provide toilet, bathing and sewage facilities for the use of those persons living in trailers which are not fitted with those fixtures.

Under the terms of the ordinance, at least 10 feet must be left between any two trailers, between trailers and buildings and none may be parked closer than 10 feet from the property line adjacent to any street.

Before operating a trailer camp, a permit must be obtained from the city health department. The operator of the camp must keep a register of all persons living there. The camps will be open to regular inspection by the health department.

The ordinance provides that any trailer which has the wheels removed for a period of 90 days will be considered a permanent residence and will come under the requirements of the Canyon Building Code.

Operators of trailer camps will be required to keep the grounds of the camp free of litter, rubbish, inflammable material and weeds, and must be well drained. A fly-tight garbage can must be kept at each trailer space.

A maximum fine of $200 was established for persons who violate any of the provisions of the ordinance, and each day a person is in violation may be considered a separate offense.

The recent influx of trailers into Canyon caused the ordinance to be adopted. In prior years, only a smattering of trailers have been parked in the city, mostly near private homes.

The ordinance, similar to the one in effect in Amarillo, was adopted to protect the health of the occupants of the trailer parks and of the general health of the city.

In a meeting Friday afternoon, the city commission hired Jodie Mahan to operate the swimming pool this summer.

Opening dates for the pool have not been set definitely yet, but it is expected it will be opened about the first of June. The actual date will depend on the weather.

Little League Offers Tryouts

Tryouts for the first season of the Randall County Little League Association will be held May 6 and 7 with eight, nine and 10-year olds, the board of directors decided in a meeting Monday night.

When the ground has been prepared, work will begin on construction of the dugouts, fences and playing field itself.

The playing equipment, including uniforms, bats, balls, bases, head protectors and catching equipment, arrived Tuesday morning.

Lee Rogers Gets Mystery Award

Lee Rogers of Rogers "66" Service at 2300 Fourth Avenue Saturday received $86 in two checks from Phillips Petroleum Company for giving perfect driveway service to a Phillips "Mystery Motorist" and for cleanliness and neat overall appearance of the station.

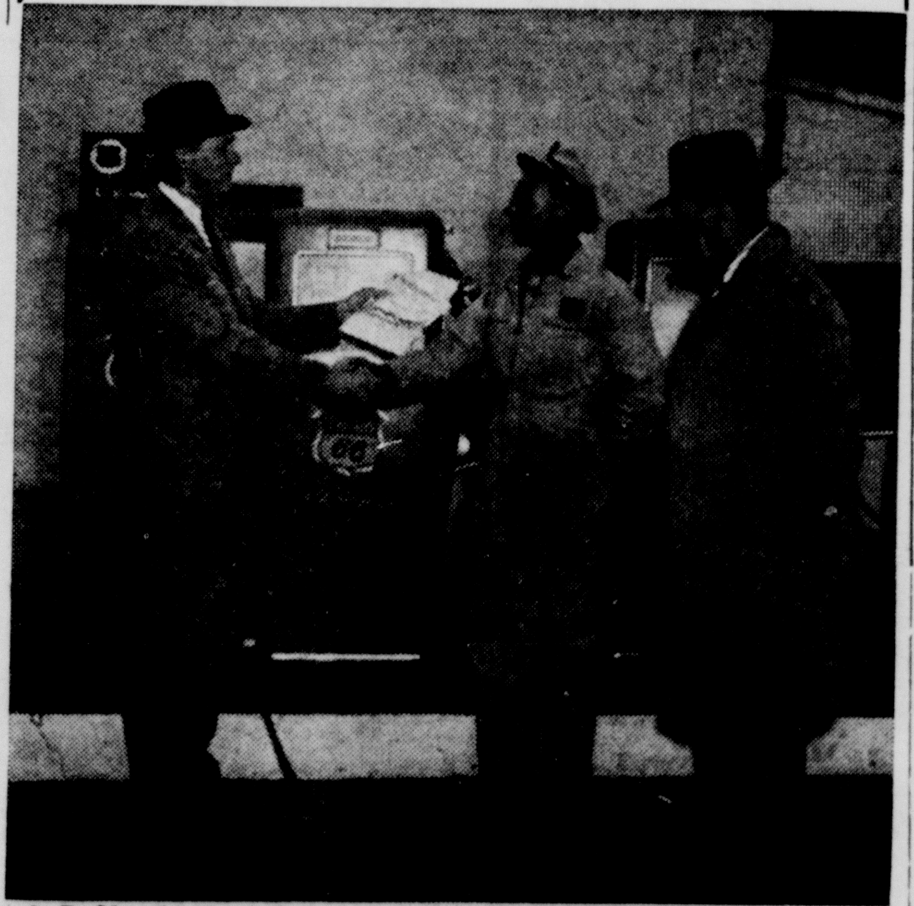
The $50 "Mystery Motorist" award was gained when an unidentified Phillips motorist paid an unheralded visit to Rogers' station.

Rogers gave the motorist the six steps in service used by the company as good driveway service. The steps include a friendly approach, checking under the hood of the car, cleaning all the car windows, whisk-brooming the floor mats, checking the tires and thanking the customer.

At the conclusion of the services, the customer identified himself as a "Mystery Motorist" and left a $50 certificate at the station.

As further recognition of driveway performance efficiency, a Jackpot certificate was awarded Rogers for display in the station window.

Receives Awards



J. E. Shackelford, left, marketing assistant from the Amarillo division office of Phillips Petroleum Company, presented two checks totaling $86 to Lee Rogers, operator of Rogers "66" Service Station, while O. W. Chapman, district salesman, stands by.

Canyon Club To Expand Charter

Experiencing an almost phenomenal growth in less than a year, the Canyon City Club is requesting charter amendment to allow the club to have 120 members instead of the 100 it has been held to since it was formed more than 50 years ago.

On Sept. 7, 1906, the Canyon City Club was chartered by the Secretary of State with a capital stock value of $20,000 and 100 members. The board of directors named in the first charter are Cyrus Eakman, W. C. Baird, L. T. Lester, R. W. O'Keefe, W. T. Moreland, D. M. Stewart and C. T. Wood.

The club rocked along through the years, enjoying seasons of prosperity and other times that were harder. For a number of years, the club maintained an 18-hole golf course with sand greens, nine holes along the creek in the canyon and nine holes on top.

The half of the course on top was abandoned and the nine on the bottom have been retained.

In 1954, the club had 83 members and an additional six shares were sold in 1955 to bring the strength to 89. And that's where the club stood last August.

Earlier in the year, in April, the club had borrowed money from its members to begin conversion of the golf greens from sand to grass. The greens were switched, changing the course layout somewhat, and water pipes were installed along the fairways so they could be watered as well as the greens.

In September, the club's original charter ran out, and it was amended to extend for another 50 years, until Sept. 7, 2006. The membership raised the share value to $300 from the original $200, and the remaining 11 shares were sold.

Work continued on the golf course, improving it steadily. Most of the work was done by club members. Late this winter, the club hired Walter Sikes, outstanding golf pro, to help with the remodeling of the course and to manage the club.

During the winter, the decision was made to request the charter expansion, and solicitations began to sell the 20 additional shares. Up to Tuesday, 16 of them have been sold.

In March, the board of directors voted to build a swimming pool at the club. Construction is expected to begin at the end of this month and should be completed in June. The estimated cost is $10,000.

When the pool is completed and the rest of the 120 shares are sold, the club plans to start building a clubhouse and increase the charter again, this time to 150 shares.

A pro-shop for Sikes is almost finished, located at the No. 1 tee. Nearby is an 18-hole putting green that is lighted.

All the grass greens were topped last week and this week by members of the West Texas State football team.

Four cabins are being built on the club grounds now. At the last board meeting, sites for 22 were approved.

Since earlier this year, the facilities of the club's golf course has been open to outsiders. Green fees are 75 cents for nine holes. Sikes also offers golf lessons.

The club is planning a handicap tournament in about two weeks.

As an indication of the club's growth, if all the original capital had been subscribed it would have been worth $20,000. It was estimated this week that the value of the club and its property is $88,500.

Elections are held in these United States so that the citizens can express their approval of candidates for offices and approve or disapprove issues that have been referred to them.

Now, there are a lot of us who do not choose to exercise our privilege. A lot of us don't purchase poll taxes, and a lot of us who do don't bother to go to the polls on election day.

However, those of us who do vote conscientiously expect that our votes will have some bearing on the outcome of the election, and we expect to be allowed to cast our ballot in every election in which we are entitled to vote.

For some reason, those things don't always occur in Randall County. Why this is so, I don't know.

As an instance, Randall County was one of 22 counties listed in the House Journal, the paper giving the official proceedings of the House of Representatives in the legislature, from which no official election returns were received by the Secretary of State.

In the instance cited in the House Journal, the fact that no official returns were received from this county meant that the votes cast for governor and lieutenant governor were not counted when it came time to officially declare a winner. Of course, Price Daniel won by a big majority and it didn't make any difference to the outcome. But I wish my vote had counted, and I wish your vote had counted, also.

As another example of the odd things that happen in Randall County, I didn't get to vote for a county school trustee from Precinct 1. Most likely I would have voted for the man who won, Dutch Cleavinger, but I didn't get a chance to vote for him. Some people who went to the polls got the chance. A lot more like me—we somehow didn't have the opportunity. The only ballot we got to vote on was the one for the Canyon Independent School District.

As far as I know, there was never any notice given for an election for the county school board, although I knew that one was supposed to be held.

Some of those who got to vote for the county school board trustee told me that they were handed a blank sheet of paper upon which to vote. That's just what I heard, though; I didn't get hold of one myself.

I do know this. Article 2676 of Vernon's Texas Statutes says that the general management and control of the public free schools and high schools in each county shall be vested in five county school trustees elected from the county, two of which will be elected in one year and three in alternating years.

And that same article says that the time for such election shall be the first Saturday in April and "the order for the election of county school trustees to be made by the county judge at least 30 days prior to the date of said election. . ."

Maybe such an order was made, but it wasn't made very publicly.

Last Monday afternoon, during the commissioners meeting, one of the commissioners, I don't remember which, asked when the returns of the special Senate election and the county school board election were to be canvassed. You see, the election code says the county commissioners are supposed to open the returns and canvass them on Monday following an election.

The commissioners were told by the county judge that the returns had already been canvassed on the senatorial election, and the results had already been sent in. The commissioners accepted that and went along with other business.

These things I wish and hope for:

I wish my vote for governor and lieutenant governor had been among those which counted officially.

I wish I had been allowed to vote in the county school election.

I hope that nothing done officially after the senatorial election will keep my vote from being registered. I voted for a man who did not win, but I want my vote to be counted.

I wish that all of the voters of Randall County can be included among those who get to voice their opinions, and I hope that we can always be.

I'd hate to think that anyone in our county is doing something wrong on purpose, and I don't believe that is so. But something is wrong, most definitely. It should be corrected.

Last year was a good one for Texas. Yessirree. We all got together and killed an average of seven people a day. When we got through, we had sent 2611 people to the grave.

N. K. Woerner, chief of the statistical division of the Texas Department of Public Safety, puts it this way:

"If we knew that a disaster of any kind would take place during the next 12 months in which 2600 persons were going to be killed, the people of this great state would demand everything humanly possible be done to prevent it. We do know that the streets and highways of Texas will be the scene of just such a tragedy during this year; yet none but a handful of individuals are even aware of the fact, much less concerned enough to do something about it."

In case you are more interested in your pocketbook than in the lives of your fellow citizens, the dollar cost of wrecks in Texas during 1956 was $229,685,450.

The Department of Public Safety has put out a little booklet detailing the year's wrecks, and on the centerfold there is a calendar showing the number of fatal wrecks and the number of fatalities. Hither and yonder are scattered red stars—five in all.

Those are the days during which no deaths were recorded. Just think—there were five days during 1956 when we motorists didn't kill anyone. March 13, May 24, June 5, June 6, December 12. Those are really and truly red letter days.

I hope you don't mind our being proud of ourselves. We fiddled around and almost swept the entire awards list at the Panhandle Press Association—there were four contests and we were entered in three.

Out of the three we won first place in two and second place in the third. The fourth contest, by the way, was for special editions and we didn't have one during the year which we could enter.

Our firsts were in the typography and presswork contest—that's the silver tray, and the best editorial contest. The second place was in the column contest.

I hope my head will shrink to normal in a few days.—BC

By
BOYCE HOUSE

A slender, active, gray-haired man who was living in retirement in Ranger a decade ago entertained this chronicler with his vivid memories of 56 years' service in the oil industry.

James McLaughlin was born in Pennsylvania where his father was an oil field teaming contractor. The lad, large and sturdy for his age, began to work around wells when he was only 11. Most of his long career was spent in the pipeline division.

Laying lines in early days was productive of difficulties from landowners. While a line was being built into the Cushing field in Oklahoma, an Indian and his family blocked the way with weapons. The man had an awesome record, it being said that, on one occasion, he was deputized to bring in three outlaws and he did—in a wagon, dead. Anyway, "Mr. Mc," who had charge of the construction, persuaded him to allow the line to cross his land.

"Of course, we paid him a good amount for the right-of-way," McLaughlin related. The man had not understood he was to be paid anything.

Another time, also in Oklahoma, a big well came in and, for some reason, it could not be shut in, so a line was being rushed to the scene. A landowner forbade the crew to cross his land.

"He was a giant of a man with piercing black eyes and he was certainly mad," McLaughlin said. "I kept my hands in my pockets so he couldn't see how bad they were trembling. He opened his mouth to speak but I said, 'Before you say anything, let me ask you a question: Suppose a big oil well had been drilled on your land and the oil was running down the creek and a neighbor wouldn't let a pipeline get to your well, how would you feel about it?' The man said, 'You're right'."

There was one occasion when a man attempted a shakedown. A line was going to cross the land of some of his neighbors and he came into town and told McLaughlin, "Just pay me and I'll take care of my neighbors." Mr. Mc listened courteously, said he'd like a little time to think about it. Meanwhile he had a bowl of fruit brought in and he and the other munched on big juicy apples and enjoyed a long social visit. Several hours went by quite pleasantly but McLaughlin said he still was not ready to answer, so the man left. When he got home, he found that a big crew, working at top speed, had crossed the neighbors' land.

It was rumored that he was very angry but Mr. Mc didn't hunt him up to find out.

Capitol Building Subject of Story

The detailed story of the building of Texas' state capitol is outlined in the lead article for the April issue of the Southwestern Historical Quarterly by Frederick W. Rathjen, instructor in history at West Texas State College.

The spring issue of the publication also includes a book review by Rathjen.

Rathjen's study is based primarily on reports of the capitol building commissioners in 1883 and on contemporary newspaper reports from the initiation of the project in 1875 until the building's completion.

The bitter fight to gain final acceptance of the capitol climaxes Rathjen's article, which ends with a meeting of the Capitol Reception Board to receive the building for the state.

Rathjen joined the WT faculty in September as instructor in history and government, coming from the University of Texas, where he earned his B.A. and M.S. degrees in government and history.

LIPSTICK LOGIC
BY LOUISE ALLEN

There are many things we're not that we'd like to be . . . Such as a ski champion, a rich, young and beautiful benefactor, a great novelist.

There are also a heck of a lot of things we're not that might look good to other folks — especially men — but which we'd find most unhappy ways of life.

Take, for example, being a fireman: Long days of inactivity, while we'd fret at being forced to sit idle, or else get so relaxed we'd pour out the door at quitting time instead of walking — followed by sudden calls to immediate action, with a cool head and an ability to show great bravery. This would keep us in a state of shock.

Or working out-of-doors the year round at any job, from carrying the mail to building buildings to herding sheep. When high winds push us around, when the dust blinds, when the sun sears, or the chill nips at hands and ears — these are the days we're glad to scurry from backdoor-to-car-to-grocery store-to-car-to-backdoor again. On bright spring days it may seem tempting, but by and large we're the four-walls type.

Or being a sports writer: Working on statistics and substitutes' names while everyone else is enjoying the game; returning to the office to write while they go home; filling a double spread on Sundays between seasons, when there's nothing happening to write about.

Or driving an ambulance. Tearing through busy streets at breakneck speeds, hoping motorists will show more sense than we think they have; with someone hovering between life and death depending on our good judgment, skill in traffic, and smooth-riding speed.

Yep, being a homemaker isn't exactly high adventure . . . but it has its points.

NAMES IS NAMES

Faintly reminiscent of the Chicago gentleman named Meyer Stinckus, who petitioned the court for a change of name, was granted it and who, when asked by the judge what his new name would be, answered, "James Stinckus, Your Honor," is the more recent case of the young brave of the Maricopa Tribe.

He appeared before his trial court saying that at birth he had been christened "All Right," and please could he select a new monicker.

As with most Indian dealings there was much red tape, but eventually the representatives of the Great White Father agreed to a change.

Asked if he had made a choice, the young buck was prompt with an affirmitive response: "Sure, I change 'All Right' to 'O. K'."

COMPLETELY CURED

"Do you guarantee results in your nerve treatment?" asked the prospective patient.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

Travis County grand jurors are going to be busy. Legislative investigating committees have dumped into their laps bales of testimony about the two biggest news developments of the year.

House ICT panel asked the jury to consider evidence suggesting that 1) Insurance Department employees received payments from ICT and 2) company officials may have violated state law prohibiting political campaign contributions by corporations.

Committee called acceptance of ICT money for former Insurance Commissioner J. Byron Saunders and Max Wayne Rychlik, son-in-law of former Chairman Garland Smith, evidence of "a gross breach of public trust." It also recommended the jury look into whether funds made available by ICT to the Texas Federation of Labor were used for political purposes. It pinpointed a legislative campaign contribution as having been charged to the corporation.

All in all, committee report showed some $50,000 in ICT funds went to persons who were in public office when they received the money. It said "propriety of some of these payments was highly questionable."

Also sent to the grand jury was a "new major development" by the House bribery investigating group. Nature of the development was a closely guarded secret.

Only information disclosed was that "new evidence" had been obtained from a witness who had been under Department of Public Safety questioning. Witness was not a state official or employee, said the district attorney.

New Laws, Studies

Besides providing grand jury evidence, House ICT Committee had three other recommendations.

They were: 1) that a law be passed giving the Insurance Commission authority to regulate management contracts, such as one BenJack Cage had with ICT, 2) that the Texas Research League be requested to study Commission operation and 3) that further investigation be made into the tangled history of ICT's financial "deals."

New Senator

Ralph Yarborough will take office as junior U. S. Senator from Texas on or sometime after April 19.

Yarborough was defeated in four previous races — three for governor, one for attorney general. His victory meant that for the first time in years a spokesman for the labor-liberal wing of the Democratic party will go into a major Texas office .

Republican hopes for a two-party Texas plummeted. In the high-man-wins race Yarborough got approximately 37 per cent of the votes; Conservative Democrat Martin Dies, 30 per cent; Republican Thad Hutcheson, 23.8 per cent.

Money Bill Passed

Legislative blueprint for state spending during the next two years has reached the conference committee stage.

An economy-minded Senate passed the general appropriations bill at a figure some $2,000,000 less than the House-approved versoin. Sponsors managed to scotch all efforts to tack on amendments for additional spending. Among items sought were raises for county agents and home demonstration agents and increases in judges' salaries.

Total of the Senate appropriation bill is $2,084,349,515. Both House and Senate recommendations are some 25 to 27 million dollars less than the comptroller's estimate of income.

Insurance Bills

A bill to allow "flexible rates" for casualty insurance is given little chance of passage.

Senate Insurance Committee refused to vote out the measure which would abolish Texas' system of statewide uniform rates. The proposed bill would set a rate based on each individual's accident record.

A House committee weighed the possibility of Insurance Commission reorganization from the viewpoint of present Chairman John Osorio. Governor Daniel had appeared earlier urging passage of the bill.

Osorio said board reorganization already is under way. He said he felt it could be successfully carried out under present laws.

Real difficulty of the commission, he said, is not top level organization, but need for more examiners. He recommended a 150-man staff, rather than the present 39, and higher pay.

Securities Department

Creation of a new state agency to regulate both insurance securities and other types has Senate committee approval.

Presently, insurance securities are handled by the Insurance Commission, general securities by the secretary of state's office.

Sen. Jimmy Phillips introduced a bill putting insurance securities under the secretary of state. That's just in case the consolidation bill doesn't pass, he said.

Water Bill Signed

Governor Daniel signed into law a measure allowing the Water Board to cancel unused water permits.

Water conservation program leaders had claimed the new rule would solve "75 per cent of Texas' water problems." Some cities had protested it would allow the board to take from them water they needed for future expansion.

Proponents said Texas now has outstanding permits for more water than is available, but all of it is not being used. Cancellation of unused permits, they said, would allow the water board to reassign water for beneficial use.

Archives-Land Building

Governor Daniel has given his blessing to a plan for a new building for the State Library and Archives and the General Land Office.

A bill providing $2,500,000 for such a building is before the Legislature. Funds would come from a surplus in the drivers license fee fund.

Ad Bill Passed

House added an industry-matching amendment before passing a Senate measure to allow state advertising.

Proposed constitutional amendment would allow use of state funds for advertising as long as they are matched by private interests.

House sponsors said they hoped the conference committee would eliminate this feature.

Short Snorts

House passed a bill to regulate egg labeling and license dealers. Senate already has passed, so measure needs only minor adjustments and the governor's signature.

Senate Transportation Committee Chairman Jep Fuller had to break a 5-to-5 tie to allow the committee to vote out a bill to increase truck load limits. Highly controversial measure is backed by truckers, opposed by railroads.

Irked by the Building Commission's failure to air condition their chambers, Legislators have passed a resolution to put in temporary air conditioning.

NEWS LETTER

FROM CONGRESSMAN WALTER ROGERS OF THE 18TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Presidential Speed

Many columnists and commentators have been having a Roman holiday with the news that the President's car went 70 miles per hour between Washington and Gettysburg. The news correspondents' car, which usually tries to keep the presidential vehicle in view, was halted by Maryland State Police and told to drive within the speed limit.

These instructions brought immediate reaction from several of the correspondents on the theory that the law is the law and the President has no more right to violate it than they do. The truth is that neither had the right to violate the law.

Two wrongs do not make a right. Under the law as written, anyone driving over the legal speed limit has violated the law. However, it would seem from all of the clamor that grew out of the presidential 70 mph that the President was driving the car, and was the only person who had ever driven over

It appeared for awhile that this tremendous event of events would sweep everything else off the front pages, including the Middle East crisis and the Texas senatorial election. It would have been much simpler to issue a traffic ticket to the President for a technical violation and thereby dispose of the entire matter.

However, if everyone around Washington who drove a few miles over the speed limit received a ticket, the printing presses would be working 24 hours a day.

I am afraid the President is being needled—a practice I hope will not be continued. The best way for the President to stop it is to take these jibes in good grace and not become nettled by questions about helicopters, speed limits and plans to step aside for the Vice President.

This will be difficult, because the office of the President of the United States in probably the toughest job in the world. It should not be made tougher.

Summerfield Ultimatum

His Honor, the Postmaster General of the United States of America, appointed by the President, has served notice on the duly elected Members of the Congress of the United States that he has spent all of the money given to him and needs a mere 47 million dollars with which to finish the fiscal year which ends on June 30.

He has further indicated that he expects to get it, and that if he doesn't get it, there will be a measurable curtailment of postal activities forthwith and immediately.

I must confess that this development in the Post Office Department came as quite a surprise to me, because I had understood from the past advertisements of the Post Office Department that Mr. Summerfield had taken over a mis-managed and inefficient operation and had streamlined it into a modern-day dynamo of efficiency and sound business practices; that he had reduced the Post Office deficit by closing a great number of 4th class post offices and denying many of the rural people in this country the postal service to which they are entitled.

He reorganized many activities of the Department so that information concerning certain postal operations cannot be obtained in Washington but must be obtained from Regional Offices. He repainted all of the trucks and mail boxes in a three-color scheme of red, white and blue.

Now we are all most favorable to that color scheme and certainly would not criticize his selection of colors, but some people have been wondering about the additional cost of a three-color scheme over a one-color scheme. Some other questions are being asked about who sold the paint.

It might be pointed out that, although Mr. Summerfield was the guiding genius who cut off the farmers' mail service, put the post office equipment in patriotic colors, decentralized the information center, and made several other changes that now require an additional 47 million dollars to pay for, it is only fair to point out that he did have some help.

The Post Office Department, in recent years, has paid some fabulous fees to efficiency expert firms to speed up the streamlining of the Department. In fact, one of these fees alone would have kept several 4th class post offices in my district open for a number of years.

I had always thought that the government departments were the leading experts in creating deficits; therefore, you can appreciate my surprise to find that one government department had to hire outside help in order to accomplish this. But, then, we must remember that this bunch not only created the deficit, but were able to curtail the service. In other words, we now get less for more—quite an accomplishment.

Foreign Aid

The grass roots clamor for sizeable budget cuts may pay off handsomely when the foreign aid appropriation bill comes before the House. Even the most ardent supporters of foreign aid, both economic and military, are admitting openly that this program can stand a sizeable cut.

The question of whether or not we will get the size cuts we want may depend upon how these supporters line up as to economic aid and military aid.

Some are advocating cuts in economic aid, but no cuts in military aid. Others are advocating sizeable cuts in the military, but not in the economic.

If these two groups can get together and reach an agreement in relation to the economic and military features of the bill, we would be able to effect a measurable cut in this program. It has been my feeling that the American taxpayers are entitled to much better results than we are receiving from the expenditure of these foreign aid funds, and that if some measurable progress cannot be made, the program should be immediately discontinued.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

OUR SOIL ★ OUR STRENGTH

Part 2 of Spencer Chemical Company's Grand Champion Speech, "My Soil Conservation District—Its Value To My Community," given by Harold Scanlan of Abilene, Kansas:

"The same thing is going on in the fields of our country as occurred 6,000 years ago in the Old World in the mountains that separate Persia from Mesopotamia. The story of civilization arose out of the mysteries of the beginning of history, and spread eastward to China and westward to Europe and across the Atlantic to America. The path of civilization, always, has been closely followed by erosion — water and wind erosion which has created a graveyard of empires all along the way.

"Do you know what happens to a finely worked field during a heavy rainfall or a black dust storm? On many, the topsoil that took millions of years to form leaves in a few hours.

"Seven hundred farmers in our district are slowly changing to conservation. In the last two years I have not talked to a single farmer who is actually against conservation. In the Lone Tree Watershed, where a cloudburst occurred, my Soil Conservation District was fortunate in having farmers with unusual conservation measures. The rainfall was from six to ten inches and fell in a period of two hours.

"A terraced field nearby, which had been contour listed with a dammer attachment, was the finest example of protection observed. Fantastic as it may seem, not one of the contour furrows broke, and water from 10 inches of rain did not run in the terrace channels!

"This indicates the true value of my Soil Conservation District to my community. The fully conserved farms of our oldest cooperators have the most modern homes and well-painted buildings. Many of these farms are able to support a father-son combination.

"The soil is not only left to the son as good as the father found it, but it keeps from the city a vigorous young family so important as a unit in America's democracy. Yes, every terrace in the district, every conservation practice, every legume field, creates a new wealth and a higher standard of living for the community."

More of this speech will be in next week's article.

Last Rites Read For J. T. Irick

Last rites to the memory of James T. Irick were held April 8 at the Bustard Funeral Home in Casper, Texas. Irick, a prominent Casper pioneer and saddlemaker, died at Memorial Hospital April 5 after a one day's illness. He had been in failing health for several years.

He was born Oct. 21, 1890, at Gainesville. His family moved to Purcell, Okla., and later to Chickasha, Okla., while he was a small boy. He first served as an apprentice in the trimming trade, and later became a harness maker. After serving in World War I he purchased a saddle shop at Casper.

Irick married Julia Dunaway, a former Casper school teacher, on Oct. 27, 1937, in Canyon.

Burial was in Dreamland Cemetery here. Pallbearers were W. A. Irick, Floyd Dunaway, George Grogan, E. J. Cundiff, Earl Irwin and Joe Wright.

Survivors besides his wife are two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Boyd, Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. E. D. Roberts, Long Beach, N. Y.; two brothers, William A. Irick and Dewey L. Irick, both of Lexington, Ky.

Attending the services were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cundiff, Floyd Dunaway of Austin, and Mrs. Ruby Wright of Fritch, brother and sister of Mrs. Cundiff, and Mrs. George Grogan, Mrs. Earl Irwin and Mrs. Johnnye Smith of Amarillo.

Lions Will Attend Bi-District Meet

Delegates from the Canyon Lions Club will attend a bi-district convention of Lions Clubs from District 2-T-1 and 2-T-2 in Lubbock May 2 through 4. The bi-district convention, held every five years, is one of the largest in the state.

It will draw delegates from 65 counties with 155 clubs and 7,633 members. Featured speakers will be Joe Childress of Abilene, international director, and Edgar M. Elbert of Maywood, Ill., past president of Lions International.

On the agenda for the convention business is the election of district governors and convention cities for the two districts, a report on the Texas Lions League Camp for Crippled Children, a necrology ceremony, joint cabinet meetings and separate luncheons on Saturday for each of the two districts.

mentary school, L. H. Brotherton at the junior high and at the Umbarger school. Any boy who plans to play in the league must obtain a registration card, have it filled out and present a birth certificate or hospital record of birth before beginning the tryouts.

Any boy who wishes to play in the league but does not attend school in Canyon or Umbarger may obtain a card from any of the schools or from the league president, O. W. Parker.

To be eligible, the boy must live in Randall County outside of the city limits of Amarillo. Age limits are from eight to 12.

On May 3, the player agent, Truett Hull, will prepare a list of those who have registered to play.

Following the tryouts, the managers will submit lists of players they want to the player agent. The lists must be submitted by May 17, and on May 20, the secret player auction will be held.

In the auction, each manager will be required to bid for the players they want on their teams, using "credits" given them at the beginning of each season. In effect, the players are "bought" just as they are in organized baseball.

The auction is kept secret so that no player may know what price he brought.

On May 29, the team rosters must be completed and registered with the league.

Play in the 36-game split season begins on June 3 with the Redlegs vs the Yankees.

The registration card to be filled out must have the signature of both the mother and the father of the player. It gives the parents' approval for their son to participate, indemnifies the league from injuries except to the extent of insurance carried by the league, provides that the league-owned equipment will be returned at the end of the season and gives the parents' agreement to furnishing a birth certificate.

Minor league teams and a schedule of games will be established following the organization of the four-team major league.

The schedule calls for four games each week, on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Other churches will have only the regular Easter Sunday services. The Pentecostal Church's Sunday School begins at 10 a. m. followed by morning worship at 11 a. m.

Sunday School classes at the Church of Christ begin at 10 a. m. and the church service is at 10:45.

Assembly of God services are at 10 a. m.

April 29 Is Feed Signup Deadline

Randall County owners of foundation herds of cattle may receive discounts on grain feeds to maintain their herds through May 15, 1957.

This 30-day extension has just been announced by the Office of the Farmer's Home Administration in Amarillo, the administrative office for the program.

Applications for the feed grains at reduced costs must be made by April 29. Applications can be made in the office of the Randall County Extension Agent John Brazzil, because the FHA maintains no office in Randall County. Local feeders are encouraged to make applications as soon as possible because each day delayed after April 15 means that a day is taken from the 30 day allowance.

At this time no definite work has been received on the extension of the roughage program.

All applications must be approved by the three man county committee for FHA to be sure that all eligibility regulations are met.

Recent visitors in the home of Mrs. T. V. Slack were her son, Joe D. Slack, and grandson, Gowdy, of Archer City.

Also working out for the rodeo team are Don Britain, Ronald Crow, Gene Rogers and Billy Steen, Gillispie said.

The team expects to enter the Amarillo FFA rodeo later this month.

GRAZING TIME NOT EXTENDED

The Department of Agriculture has refused to extend the deadline for grazing of soil bank land in the blizzard area, according to a telegram received from Congressman Walter Rogers Tuesday.

The telegram said:

"Department of Agriculture refused to change expiration date for grazing soil bank crops from April 15 to May 15 in storm ridden area. Numerous requests to Department of Agriculture are based upon argument that this same area has undergone six years of drouth plus the recent blizzards has failed to alter department's position. They advise again this morning that they will not extend grazing period to May 15th. Walter Rogers."

FOXHOLE IN 90 SECONDS—G.I.'s should welcome this new device—a "90-Second Foxhole Digger," developed by the Stanford Research Institute of Menlo Park, Calif. The Digger enables ground troops to dig their positions in a minimum warning period. Left, a technician places the rocket-explosive unit in a launching tube. After the fuse is ignited, the technician takes cover, and the rocket is driven about two feet into the ground. The charges explodes and—presto—a four-foot deep, four-foot wide crater is cleared, right.

A concert by the WT A Cappella Choir will be presented at 4 p. m. April 28, with the official opening of the festival to be a banquet at 5 p. m. April 28 in the college cafeteria. 10th Annual Weed Meeting Is April 25

The Southwestern Great Plains Field Station at Bushland will be host for the 10th annual meeting of the Texas Weed Control Association on April 25. Hours will be 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

At this April 25th meeting the newest findings of weed control research will be discussed. Because Randall County is located near the Bushland Station and because noxious weeds such as field bindweed and Johnson grass are spreading in this area, Randall County land owners should take this opportunity to attend, County Agent John Brazzil said.

At noon a barbecue lunch will be served by the association at no cost to the people attending.

Brazzil will be on the program and will discuss "How to Organize a Weed Control District."

Cherry Blossoms

BY DOVIE CHERRY

It's mighty pleasing to win a prize for this column at the Panhandle Press Convention, but it surely has a big disadvantage, too. I think that this week's column should be especially fit to read, which makes it harder to write, and getting the prize Saturday didn't give me but about one day to rest on my laurels.

And it has another disadvantage. Should I not say anything here about getting a second prize and be falsely modest and even given the impression that I'm not thrilled to death over it, or should I not only toot my horn but sound a fanfare, too? Let me be human. Heck, I'm proud. So there.

While Jack and Dorothy Haley and Bill and I were having after-dinner coffee Thursday evening at the Herring Hotel, a waitress stopped at our table and said, "Say, girls, I know how you can get out of cooking any more meals. Just put your husband on a diet."

With a wry smile, she continued, "I just waited on a fellow who ordered raw oatmeal with grated carrot, onion and oil on top. And with it he had two corn on the cob—uncooked!"

Sunday afternoon and probably Monday and Tuesday, Gisella Loeffler of Taos, N. M., a noted painter and versatile artist, will be at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum to discuss her work which is on display there.

I think her drawings have a special charm and enchanting gaiety. They are noted for being fascinating to children, but I believe they would be appealing to all young in heart.

Stop by the museum Sunday during the afternoon tea beginning at 3 p. m. and talk with Gisella about her extensive tours in Mexico and South America and then see her drawings. I think you will find your time well spent.

Sunday, the churches will be filled with Canyonites all decked out in gay finery, and the wearing of all these new clothes and the fashion parade are all part of an old tradition. It wasn't an American idea. We may have expanded on it but we didn't start it.

In parts of England an old belief held that it was unlucky not to wear something new on Easter Sunday. There was a couplet that said: "At Easter let your clothes be new or else you will it rue."

This was only one of the many interesting facts and stories about Easter which I read recently in Aramco World, a small magazine with lush photographs published by Arabian American Oil Company.

The traditional Easter egg hunt is as dear to the small ones in Canyon as to millions of other children, and the egg is not only fun to find, but according to this article the egg is an ancient emblem of the renewal of life. It was readily accepted as a Christian symbol of resurrection.

The Egyptians used the eggs as sacred symbols of mankind's renewal after the Deluge. The Persians believed that the world was hatched out of an egg and they not only exchanged eggs in the springtime but at New Year's.

In early days eggs were forbidden to Christians during Lent and so they appeared in abundance on the Easter table colored in red, a token of the day's joy.

In Italy, colored eggs formed a massive centerpiece on a table decorated with flowers and in Spain eggs were put into elaborate, fanciful cakes.

This following fact I had never heard, but the article said that in France the children believed that bells were silent during Holy Week because they had gone to Rome. When the bells returned, ringing, they brought with them red eggs for the small children.

In the Tyrol valleys on Easter Eve and in Great Britain, children went from house to house begging eggs. In the Tyrol valleys singers roamed singing hymns to the accompaniment of guitars and they were followed by the children.

Fanciful jewel box eggs are seen each year in stores, but there's not much doubt that few, if any, have received as elegant an Easter egg as Tsar Nicholas II presented the Tsarina in 1906.

The shell was of deligate mauve enamel-on-gold and was encased in a latticework of slender diamond ribbons. Within was the surprise —a tiny platinum swan amid golden water-lilies on a miniature lake of aquamarine. When touched the "swan glided into life arching its neck and spreading its wings."

The Easter bunny originated with our Teutonic ancestors. They believed the hare was connected some way with the moon and was a symbol of fertility. As a result, the hare was featured in the pagan festivals of Eostre, Anglo-Saxon goddess of dawn and spring. When Christianity reached the Teutons, these pagan celebrations were absorbed and the hare given a place in the Christian festival of Easter.

Dr. A. K. Knott remarked to me Saturday that these Cherry Blossoms were probably the only ones left after the weekend freeze. But, luckily, that isn't so, for on Sunday Canyon had lots and lots of beautiful blooms.

But, you notice I said Sunday. No telling what will happen between then and Wednesday.

SWPS Co. Joins Research Group

Southwestern Public Service Company and 10 other electric light and power companies in Texas have formed the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation to engage in research in the atomic energy field as applied to the generation of electric power.

Incorporation papers were filed last week with the Texas secretary of state.

Research by the foundation will be directed toward the fundamental methods involved rather than toward the early use of atomic energy in steam-power plants of the participating companies.

The 11 companies do not plan to ask for government aid for the foundation, but expect it to work closely with the Atomic Energy Commission. The program for the foundation is long range, according to J. E. Cunningham, president of Southwestern Public Service.

Fairview Breezes

We enjoyed the youth rally at Fairview Saturday evening. Somewhere around 70 were present. We want to thank everyone who contributed toward making the gathering a success.

Mrs. Aleck Simon of Hobbs, N. M., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. F. Evans.

G. E. Wesley had the misfortune of getting his pickup wrecked while taking a trailer load of feed to Woodrow Wesley. A butane truck side-swiped his pickup and threw it off the pavement. Luckily no one was hurt.

J. D. Prossor was in the G. E. Wesley home Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. James Roberts of Albuquerque, N. M., have been visiting with Mrs. Robert's mother, Mrs. M. F. Evans, and her sisters, Mrs. J. W. Wesley and Mrs. G. E. Wesley, and their families the past several days.

Visitors in the J. W. Wesley home Sunday were Mrs. Ella Hext of Happy and Faye Scott of Tulia, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wesley, Margaret, Wyley, Patsy, Genie and Tommie, Bro. and Mrs. Bill Hall, Paula and Bill, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. James Roberts.

Artie Pearson and Jimmie called in the G. E. Wesley home Thursday evening.

J. W. Wesley and Mrs. Ella Hext were in Canyon on business Monday.

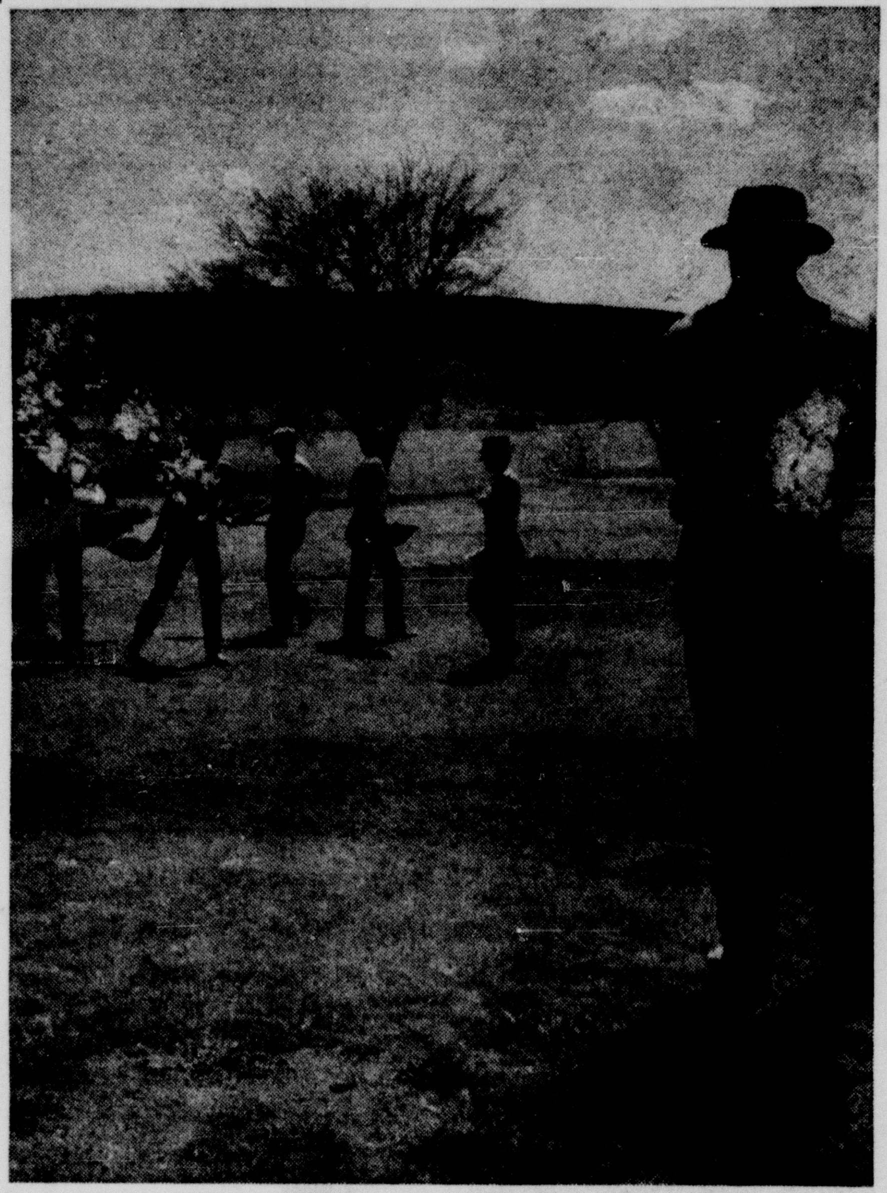
We were glad to have Bettie Patterson and Mrs. Pauline Wesley, Bowie and C. R., and Mrs. Serena Bryan and Tom Rogers out for services Sunday.

The annual Easter day dinner will be at the E. M. Wilson home Sunday. Bring a covered dish and enjoy the day with us. Everyone is invited.

Mrs. J. W. Wesley will entertain the home demonstration club Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Serena Bryan had as her guest Friday evening Mrs. Charles Sutton.

Top-Dressing Greens



West Texas State College football players top-dressed five of the nine grass greens at the Canyon City Club last week in order to improve the putting surface and help the grass to grow.

Mrs. Stratton Is 'Grandmother' Now

"I'm a grandmother now," Mrs. C. H. Stratton said after returning from a three-weeks visit with her son, Charles A. Stratton, and his family in Bartlesville, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Stratton adopted two girls, Nora, 13, and Bonnie, 11, Mrs. Stratton said. The girls were adopted after staying about two months with her son and his wife.

Mrs. Stratton said the girls had a sick stepfather and the Baptist minister in Bartlesville was asked to find them a home. He placed the girls with Mr. and Mrs. Stratton. "They sure are fine girls," Mrs. Stratton said.

Las Amigas HD Has All Day Meet

Members and guests who attended the all-day meeting of the Las Amigas Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. Bob Costley April 11 saw two demonstrations given by Mrs. Mona Hildreth, HD agent, and had a covered dish luncheon at noon.

Mrs. Hildreth's first demonstration was on making spring hats, and the second was preparing foods for the freezer. She brought with her cheese puffs which she baked and served the group at noon.

There were three guests present. There were Mrs. E. P. Davours, Mrs. Harley Burrus and Mrs. Wayne Fulton.

The next meeting will be April 25 with Mrs. Don Olson.

Canyon Chapter Members Entertain Daughters of American Revolution

Canyon members of the Esther McCrory Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, entertained the organization April 8, at 2 p. m. in the home of Mrs. T. B. McCarter.

Hostesses were Mrs. McCarter, Mrs. Joe Bailey, Mrs. John Davis, Mrs. Joe Findley, Mrs. W. T. Green, Mrs. J. Evetts Haley, Mrs. Jack Hughes and Mrs. Clyde Warwick.

During the business meeting, at which the Regent, Mrs. Travis M. Dameron, presided, Mrs. Dameron, Mrs. McCarter and Mrs. B. C. D. Bynum gave reports on the state convention of the D.A.R. which they had attended as delegates of the chapter. Mrs. McCarter pointed out Texas is the only state that has a pre-convention program on national defense.

Mrs. Findley presented a program on American musical education. Musical numbers were given by Mrs. Marion Forbau and Fawayne Murphy, students in the music department at West Texas State College.

Mrs. Forbau played Bach "Allemande," Bartok "Sonatine," selections from "Six Guatemalan Sketches," and Chopin "Prelude in E minor."

Murphy sang Schubert's "The Millermaid," Schumann's "Thou Art So Like a Flower" and "I Chide Thee Not," "Thy Tiny Hand is Frozen" from Puccini's opera "La Boheme," and the "Flower Song" from Bizet's "Carmen."

A special guest at the program was Annelle Dugan, holder of this year's DAR Citizenship Award in Canyon High School.

Following the program, tea was served from a table laid with an Italian lace cloth and centered with a bouquet of daffodils, flanked by yellow tapers. Silver and crystal appointments completed the arrangement. Mrs. Warwick and Mrs. C. Willard Smith presided at the tea table.

Greatest Teacher Is Speech Topic

"The greatest teacher of all" was the theme developed from the subject, "What have you in your heart?," discussed April 13 at the dinner meeting of the Pi Chapter Delta Kappa Gamma Society in the Amarillo High School cafeteria.

The speaker, Mrs. Patsy Duncan, said, "Jesus was the greatest teacher of all . . . Jesus was the only original thinker that the world has ever known. The lessons taught by Jesus can be put in no fewer words or more beautiful language."

In the absence of the president, Marilyn A. Payne, Mrs. Nannie Enlow presided. The chapter collect was given by Irene Crawford and Mrs. T. C. Sparks led the response. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. B. Lowe.

Crounse Reviews Novel for Club

Mrs. T. V. Crounse reviewed Beloved by Vinia Delmar at the Junior Woman's Book Club meeting Friday afternoon. Beloved is a recently published novel based on the personal life and marriage of Judah Benjamin, Confederate statesman.

Mrs. Crounse was introduced by Mrs. Bill Davis. A brief business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. H. R. Fulton Jr. Due to the fact that a quorum was not present, the business concerning revision of the club constitution was not presented and will be presented to the club at the next meeting.

This was guest day and four guests were present. Other than Mrs. Crounse the women were Mrs. Shephard Townsend, Mrs. Edward L. Lindsey and Mrs. Edward S. Eneboe.

A CIRCUS

A hard-driving taximan ignored a red signal, threatened the traffic policeman's knees, missed the street island by an inch, and grazed a bus, all in one dash.

The policeman hailed him, then strolled over to the taxi, pulling a big handkerchief from his pocket enroute.

"Listen, cowboy," he growled. "On your way back I'll drop this and see if you pick it up with your teeth."

thinking of making money with chickens?...

Fall egg prospects look good

Chick hatch down 21% (Feb. 15 U.S. Government report)... fewer pullets on farms... probably 5-6% fewer chicks will be raised this spring—all point to strong egg prices this fall.

The egg price pendulum is due to swing up again this fall. The substantial drop in chick hatchings, pullets on farms, and flock replacement intentions, should result in better egg prices. This offers real opportunity to the poultry raiser who is ready with sturdy, rugged pullets when prices start up.

HOW TO CUT PULLET-GROWING COSTS

And one way to make more money is to cut costs by cutting feed used in growing pullets. A recent study showed that pullets raised at the Purina Research Farms require 250 pounds less feed per 100 birds than the average in nine leading poultry states. That makes a saving of $8.50 to $12.50 on each 100 pullets raised! You can start right now to make money with Purina's low-cost pullet growing plan. And, right here at the Store with the red-and-white Checkerboard Sign... we can help you start right... and stay right... with the Purina Pullet Program best suited to your particular conditions.

Poultry Health Hint—We recommend that you protect your chicks and young pullets against common disease germs with Purina Disinfectant and Purina Check-R-Tabs. They provide a lot of valuable protection at very little cost.

THERE'S AN ELECTRIC HEATING METHOD FOR EVERY HOME NEED!

Electric Heating is CLEAN, MODERN, AND SAFE!

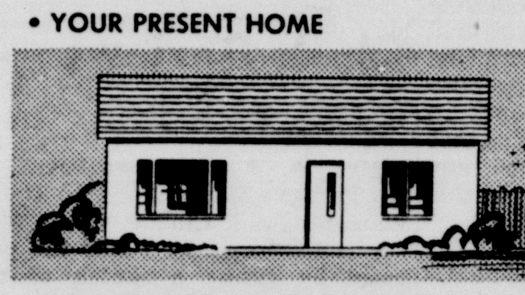
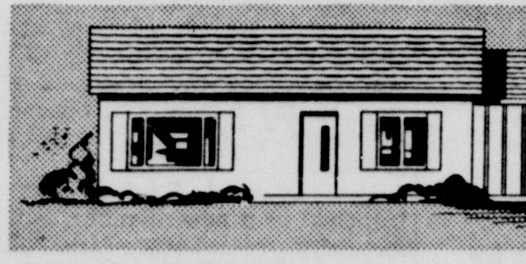
Now, instantaneous, comfortable heating—of course, it's electric! Whether you are building your new home, remodeling or adding a room to your present home, you can use electric heating. The advantages you have with your electric work-saving appliances are also yours with electric heating. Electric heating is the cleanest form of heating known. Now is the time to solve your heating problems for next winter and years to come. For information, without obligation, see your Public Service Company manager.

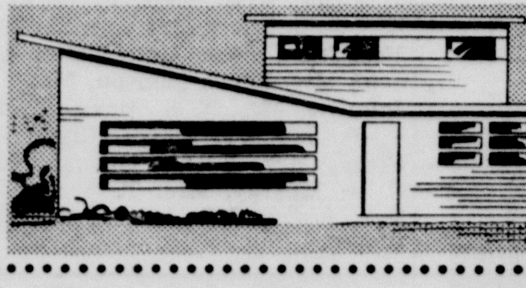
• YOUR PRESENT HOME

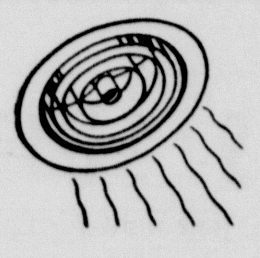


• THAT ROOM YOU'RE ADDING ON



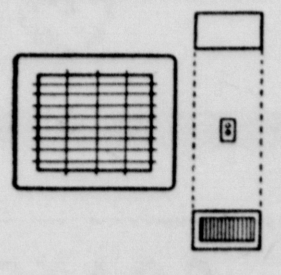
• YOUR NEW HOME





★ CEILING HEATING UNIT WITH CIRCULATING FAN

Ceiling heating units are ideal for bathrooms, hallways or kitchens. They can be used as the main heat source or as auxiliary heating. A flip of the switch gives you heat where you want it and, if desired, a controlling thermostat can be added for automatic operation.

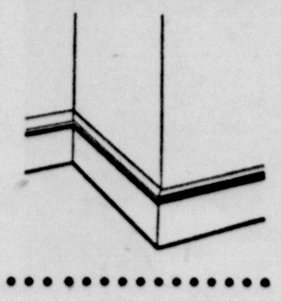


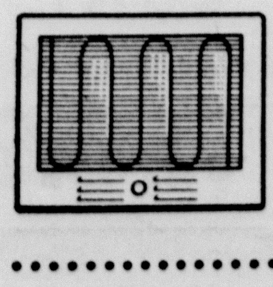
★ RADIANT-CONVECTION WALL HEATERS

This type of electric heating you've seen many times either in portable heaters or in wall-mounted units. Such electric heating units are inexpensive, can be thermostatically controlled and are easily installed. One answer to the problem of heating a room added on.

★ BASEBOARD HEATING UNITS

Electric baseboard heating is completely inconspicuous since it can be painted to match or contrast with wall colors. In practically all homes the heating requirement is met by installation along outside walls only. Furniture can be placed anywhere without interfering with your heating.



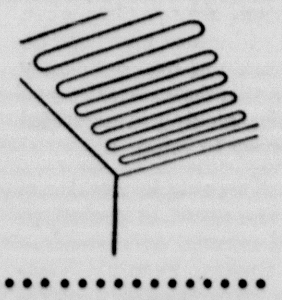


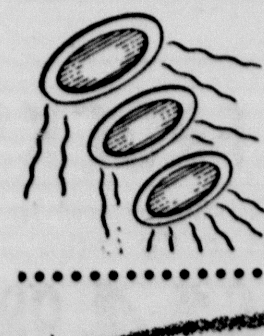
★ RADIANT GLASS, METAL or CERAMIC PANELS

Nearest thing to the warmth of the sun's natural heat rays is electric radiant heat. Heating coils are imbedded in a heat conducting material which, through radiance, warms your family, floors, furniture. These units, mounted on wall, near floor, come in various sizes, up to 50½ inches long.

★ EMBEDDED CEILING CABLES OR PANELS

As in all electric heating your furnace is miles away (at the electric power plant). You turn on a switch and get completely clean electric heat. Continuous coils are run back and forth across entire ceiling area and then covered with plaster or texture paint material. Heating system is completely out of sight.





★ HEAT LAMPS

Heat lamps are used where quick spot heating is desired—over work benches, in garages, working on the family car, etc. A heat lamp can be inserted in place of a regular lighting bulb, or it can be installed permanently in bathroom ceilings, etc.

★ THE AMAZING NEW HEAT PUMP

Here's the amazing "heat pump" which uses the principle employed in your electric refrigerator to "pump" heat to you in winter and cool air in the summer. It's a combination central unit which costs approximately the same as the central heating and cooling units in conventional use. No matter the outside weather, the "heat pump" adjusts immediately to give you the weather you want inside your home.
